7 REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD TRAVEL IN JANUARY & FEBRUARY

①

ESCAPE THE CROWDS AND EMBRACE SERENITY

During winter, which is the off-peak season in Japan, travellers can avoid long queues at temples and immerse themselves in a serene Zen retreat.

②

EXPLORE FESTIVALS AND TRADITIONS

Winter in Japan is marked by unique festivals and traditions. The Sapporo Snow Festival showcases incredible ice and snow sculptures, while the Otaru Snow Light Path Festival features lantern-lined pathways.

③

SEASONAL DELIGHTS

Take advantage of the favourable exchange rate and experience winter culinary delicacies in renowned restaurants. Japan boasts the highest number of Michelin-starred restaurants, with over 500 throughout the country.

④

EARLY CHERRY BLOSSOMS AND PLUM BLOSSOMS

In February, you can see early-blooming 'Kawazu-Sakura' in the Izu Peninsula, which is an ideal day trip from Tokyo. Instead of cherry blossoms, travellers can also enjoy the beautiful plum blossoms that will delight their eyes.

⑤

JAPAN SKI EXPERIENCE

Winter sports enthusiasts rank the powder snow in destinations such as Hokkaido or Nagano as their top priority. The high-quality and abundant snow attracts winter sports enthusiasts from around the world.

⑥

SNOW MONKEYS IN ONSEN HOT SPRINGS

Even if you don't ski, it's worth visiting the mountains to see the adorable snow monkeys taking a bath in the hot springs in Nagano.

⑦

CLEAR VIEW OF MT. FUJI

There are better chances of seeing Mt. Fuji clearly due to the clear, cold air.
